Postgraduate track Program: Political Sciences and International Relations

1. Olympiad winner's skill set

To win the Olympiad, you should have a firm grasp of concepts related to the subject matter of political science and international relations, their practical application, forecasting their development, and an understanding of the causes of political events at various levels (global, regional, national, local).

It is also vital to be familiar with and be able to apply scientific methods in the study of political and social processes, be proficient in the use of modern information and communication technologies and software, as well as to communicate fluently in Russian and foreign languages. In addition, to win you should be able to conduct basic theoretical and applied research, develop strategies for action, analyze socio-economic and political processes, and use modern communication technologies for academic and professional interaction.

International relations

| Online courses | Link | Summary |
|----------------|---------------------|---|
| in English | | |
| Global | https://www.courser | The course provides a well-researched and compre- |

| diplomacy: | a.org/learn/global- | hensive introduction to the United Nations system. |
|------------------|------------------------------|---|
| United Nations | diplomacy-un | It consists of an introduction to the complex UN |
| | aipioinacy-air | |
| | | family and its history, and a series of 'snapshots' of |
| (Coursera) | | key UN functions, which are used to explore key |
| | | UN issues and help learners develop key analytical, |
| | | communication and policy skills. The course is |
| | | broadly aimed at people interested in learning more |
| | | about the United Nations system, assuming a level |
| | | of interest but no necessary prior knowledge, while |
| | | offering enough current research and new critical |
| | | perspectives to be of interest to those with more ex- |
| | | pertise or academic familiarity with the subject. The |
| | | main aim of the course is to provide this broad in- |
| | | troduction in a self-contained but in-depth form, to- |
| | | gether with the important practical skills needed to |
| | | understand and discuss UN affairs, and possibly to |
| | | lay the foundations for greater engagement in the |
| | | future - either in civil society or in further study. |
| Russia, China | https://stepik.org/cou | The course aims to provide students with a con- |

| the Asia-Pacific | - | tion between China, Russia and the US in the |
| Region (Stepik) | | Asia-Pacific region (APR). Particular attention |
| | | will be paid to the development of the foreign |
| | | policy of the great powers in the Asia-Pacific re- |
| | | gion, their evolution in recent decades, and the |
| | | relations between the great powers after the Cold |
| | | War and the collapse of the Soviet Union. We |
| | | will focus on conceptual/theoretical issues of po- |
| | | litical science; we will discuss the roots of great |
| | | power foreign policy, the building of internation- |
| | | al institutions in the new century, issues of eco- |
| | | nomic development, political identity and the |
| | | evolution of political culture, and the future of |
| | | leadership in the modern world. The expert inter- |
| | | views will also discuss how the factors of the |
| | | emerging powers in the APR influence national |
| | | and regional security and economics. |

| Global Politics | https://www.edx.org/ | The course examines global order and local disorder |
| (edX) | course/global- | to explain why international studies in the West is |
| | politics | moving toward a planetary approach to world poli- |
| | | tics. Thinking globally helps explain new connec- |
| | | tions between changes in the natural environment |
| | | (demographics and climate) and changes in govern- |
| | | ing institutions. Will societies and peoples find a |
| | | way to get along despite intractable conflicts and |
| | | divergent social and national interests? Will states |
| | | delegate enough sovereignty to universal organiza- |
| | | tions instead of keeping power within national bor- |
| | | ders? Will the world ever be governed, and gov- |
| | | erned more democratically? This course in global |
| | | politics aims to explore these key questions. It |
| | | draws on a mix of disciplines - anthropology, histo- |
| | | ry, sociology, economics, and psychology - and a |
| | | mix of paradigms, because no single approach is |
| | | sufficient to explain the complexity of today's glob- |
| | | al issues. Combining different ways of thinking cre- |
| | | ates a more complete picture of the myriad transac- |
| | | tions that are moving the planet toward a more |
| | | complex equilibrium. |

| Public policy and human rights (HSE University) | https://openedu.ru/course/hse/PPPCH/ | The main attention of the course will be paid to the discussion of the concept of "public policy" itself, as well as to the development and activity of institutions - intermediaries, mediators, which in their work realize the function of connecting the main factors of the field of public policy. Among such institutions, attention will be paid first of all to think tanks and centers of public policy, various types of public councils and public chambers, as well as to the institution of the Commissioner for Human Rights (Ombudsman). At the same time, the course will take into account international experience in the development of public policy and mediating institutions, as well as the already accumulated experience of modern Russia. |
| History of public administration (SPb Polytechnic University and SPb State Institute of Psychology and Social Work) | https://openedu.ru/ course/spbstu/HISP ADM/?session=fall _2024 | The main goal of this online course is to create a system of knowledge for students to understand the essence of the main stages of the history of public administration, and practical skills to solve problems arising in the process of professional activity of a public (municipal) servant. The course presents the main stages of social development and evolution of the Russian system of public administration: from the Veche system and princely power of ancient Russia to the new "sociopolitical normality" and the digital ecosystem of public administration, which will be formalized in the Russian Federation by 2021. |
| Comparative politics (HSE University) | https://openedu.ru/ course/hse/COMP OL/?session=2022 | The purpose of the online course "Comparative Politics" prepared by HSE teachers is to introduce students to the basic terminology and tools of comparative political science, which is one of the disciplines of modern political science focused on the creation of empirical and practical knowledge about politics. Accessibility of professional knowledge is a priority of the course creators, therefore it is enough for students to start learning courses in school social studies and history. The course is intended for students who want to develop their knowledge of the field of politics online. |

| Contemporary Issues in World Politics (edX) | https://www.edx.or g/course/contempor ary-issues-in- world-politics | The course examines thorny issues in contemporary world politics, including the turmoil in the Balkans resulting from the collapse of Yugoslavia; the rise of China and the return of Russia as a major player on the world stage; and the humanitarian crises in Bosnia and Kosovo, where the West intervened, and Rwanda and others, where it did not. We'll then analyze the Arab Spring, where democratic aspirations largely failed and the resulting upheavals fueled the expansion of radical Islam and the associated wave of global terrorism. The course will also examine frozen conflicts, such as the Arab-Israeli conflict, and conclude with a look at the problems of the global commons, such as climate change, pollution, pandemics, and growing refugee challenges. |
| Environmental Gamechanger – Lead the Way to Sustainable Development | https://www.edx.or g/course/becoming- an-agent-of- sustainable-change | There is a lot of talk about environmental sustainability these days, but it has come to mean different things in different contexts. While the definition of sustainability is complicated, understanding it is critical to solving pressing global problems. The emerging field of "sustainability science" has identified a set of skills that are critical to analyzing and solving sustainability problems. In the Becoming an Agent of Sustainable Change MOOC, we will introduce you to these essential skills in an applied and interactive way. Through assignments, inspiring real-world cases from sustainability leaders, self-reflection, and discussions |

| Global Politics (edX) | https://www.edx.or g/course/global- politics | with fellow learners, you will sharpen and personalize your skills. You will be empowered to begin your journey as an agent of sustainable change. The course examines global order and local disorder to explain why international studies in the West is moving toward a planetary approach to world politics. Thinking globally helps explain new connections between changes in the natural environment (demographics and climate) and changes in governing institutions. Will societies and peoples find a way to get along despite intractable conflicts and divergent social and national interests? Will states delegate enough sovereignty to universal organizations instead of keeping power within national borders? Will the world ever be governed, and governed more democratically? This course in global politics aims to explore these key questions. It draws on a mix of disciplines - anthropology, history, sociology, economics, and psychology - and a mix of paradigms, because no one approach is sufficient to explain the complexity of today's global issues. Combining different ways of thinking creates a more complete picture of the myriad transactions that are moving the planet toward a more complex equilibrium. |
